

"BLACKSTRAP" ACQUITTED.

Got Off Despite Theodore Lambert's Testimony Against Him.

William, alias "Blackstrap," Davis and Theodore Lambert were arraigned in the Camden County Criminal Court yesterday on a charge of robbing the house of John G. Savage, of Hyde Park, in October last. Pawnbroker Lindsay, of Philadelphia, identified Lambert as the man who pawned the stolen articles.

Lambert then turned State's evidence and swore that he, "Blackstrap" Davis and Josiah Stevens went to Savage's house and he stayed outside. The articles were thrown out of the house to him and he pawned them.

The jury did not believe Lambert and acquitted Davis, who was held to see if the Philadelphia authorities have any charge against him. If they do not appear against him to-day his counsel, Lawyer John L. Semple will apply for his discharge.

Stevens and Lambert will be tried for the murder of Baker William G. Kaiser at the next term of court. Lawyer H. S. Seovel was yesterday appointed by the court to defend Stevens. Lawyer Semple will defend Lambert.
